

Medical Interactions

"How will the vaccine affect other medicines I'm on?"

---

"That is a great question. From what we know so far, there is very little chance of any negative interactions between the vaccine and most medications. This is because the COVID vaccine affects your immune system and most everyday medications don't go near that system. There are, of course, exceptions, and I will let you know if there are any medications you should be concerned about."
